Uukwaluudhi Reserve is a sanctuary for a variety of antelope species such as eland, red-hartebees, wildebeest, springbok, oryx, kudu, black-faced impala and larger herbivores such as giraffe and black Rhino. Smaller species are made up of the array of different birds that live on the ground and high up in trees and between shrubs throughout the reserve. The wildlife is endemic to Namibia and can also be found in other unprotected wilderness areas where there are no fences and where they roam free. Uukwaluudhi reserve however is fenced, to keep its valuable wildlife within a buffer zone. It is the Conservancies responsibility, together with the Ministry of Wildlife and Conservation to manage this valuable natural resource for the benefit of the community. Conservancies often utilise the wildlife through hunting quotas that earn them revenue. Uukwaluudhi Conservancy however chose to go into a joint venture with a private entity that specialises in Tourism.

Our game drives on the reserve generate income for the Conservancy while affording our guest the unique opportunity to see the wildlife from close-by in their natural environment.

Your designated guide will do an introduction of the route to be taken on the reserve and explain what kind of animals you might encounter on the way. Information on the animal will be shared and discussed as well as the birdlife and surrounding flora.
